

Weekly Markets

Fresh products locally grown

In a city as large as the German capital, it's no surprise that the weekly markets in Berlin span a wide range of specialities including art, antiques, food and seasonal specials. The Karl-August-Platz weekly market occurs on Wednesdays and Saturdays and is a generalist market located in Berlin-Charlottenburg. In particular, you'll find food, wine, clothing and arts and crafts, among much more. Ökomarkt am Kollwitzplatz is an ecomarket occurring every Thursday on the Kollwitzplatz in Prenzlauer Berg with sustainable foods and clothing. Kunstmarkt am Zeughaus in the area between Schlossbrücke and Museum Island is perfect for finding original art and smaller souvenirs to take back home.

Neuköllner Wochenmärkte am Maybachufer

A unique market experience awaits you on Maybachufer in Neukölln: fresh food, colourful fabrics, creative unique items and street food from all over the world - lively, diverse and right on the water.

 Maybachufer
12047
Berlin

Do you need help planning? I'll be happy to help
you.

 Chat

© Grüne Liga, Foto: Claudia Kapfer

Ökomarkt am Kollwitzplatz

An “ecomarket” has been held every Thursday since 1996 on the Kollwitzplatz in Prenzlauer Berg. There are now more than 50 vendors offering organic produce. The goods on offer range from fruit and vegetables from local Brandenburg farmers to handicrafts, children’s clothing, jewellery and even stalls offering to serve you lunch. An unusual feature of the event is that it begins at noon, to guarantee that the farmers can harvest their products and bring them for sale on the same day.

📍 Ökomarkt
Kollwitzpla
Kollwitzpla
10435
Berlin

© visitBerlin, Foto: Dagmar Schwelle

Weekly Market on Winterfeldtplatz

The Winterfeldtplatz in Schöneberg is not just geographically midway between raffish Kreuzberg and middle-class Wilmersdorf. Its stylish bars, cafés und restaurants make it a lively place for a day out. The atmosphere is best enjoyed on a Saturday.

📍 Winterfeldt
10781
Berlin

© (c) visumate

DIE DICKE LINDA

Every Saturday there is a vibrant hustle and bustle on the Kranoldplatz in Berlin.

📍 Kranoldpla
12051
Berlin

© visitBerlin, Foto: Dagmar Schwelle

Friedrichshain-Kreuzberg is the home of street food

Whether you want something to crunch, to nibble or to savour – the street food scene in Friedrichshain-Kreuzberg has it all!

Do you need help planning? I'll be happy to help you.

Karl-August-Platz Weekly Market

Every Wednesday and Saturday from 8.00am–1.30pm, merchants and artisans set up their tents on Karl-August-Platz in Berlin-Charlottenburg. The offerings range from arts and crafts to leather goods and from flowers to fine wines and antipasti. After shopping the market, you can head to one of the original food stalls to grab a light snack.

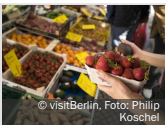

📍 Karl-August-Platz
Karl-August-Platz
10625
Berlin

Market Neuköllner Stoff

Every Saturday, the stands of the art and design market "Neuköllner Stoff" transform the Maybachufer into a lively market with special atmosphere. Here you can take a relaxing stroll along the Landwehrkanal and discover the most beautiful treasures and homemade jewellery. Up to 100 merchants from all over the world present art and crafts, cosmetics, fashion and children's toys. The food stalls will make your visit to the market particularly tasty with various culinary delicacies and specialities.

📍 Maybachufer
10967
Berlin

Neuer Markt at Südsterne

The new weekly market at Südsterne has around 45 dealer and is focused at local products, creativity, culinary and biological food. It takes place every saturday from 10am to 4 pm.

📍 Südsterne
1
10961
Berlin

Do you need help planning? I'll be happy to help
you.

Ökomarkt im Hansaviertel

Eco-market on Fridays with food from controlled organic cultivation, natural cosmetics, clothing and other products from ecologically sensible production. Other locations: Nordbahnhof (Wednesday), Thusnelda-Allee (Wednesday) and Akazienstraße (Thursday).

📍 Ökomarkt
im
Hansaviert
Hansaplatz
10557
Berlin

Parchimer Allee Market

On the Mittelinsel, near Fritz-Reuter-Allee in Berlin-Neukölln every Friday from 10 to 18 o'clock there is a weekly market with a variety of offers. Fresh bakery products, fruit and vegetables as well as cheese and meat are offered at around 10 selected stands. Mediterranean specialities and olives give rise to Mediterranean flair. Those who are hungry can buy a variety of snacks and delicious organic coffee.

📍 Fritz-
Reuter-
Allee
12359
Berlin

Street food in Berlin

Berlin is the home of street food in Germany: currywurst and the döner kebab were invented here.

Do you need help planning? I'll be happy to help
you.

Wochenmarkt Onkel Toms Hütte

The Ladenstraße in the underground station Onkel Toms Hütte accommodates a weekly market every Thursday on the forecourt of the shopping arcade. With French salami, Mediterranean specialities and Italian olives, you can look forward to a varied selection.

📍 Onkel-Tom-Straße 99
14169
Berlin

Official Tourism Website
visitBerlin.de

Berlin's official tourist ticket berlin-welcomecard.de

© Berlin Tourismus & Kongress GmbH

Do you need help planning? I'll be happy to help
you.